

“At the moment we need to focus research on basic questions about their biology, find out whether there are any more undiscovered populations, do what we can to protect